KEYNOTE HIGHLIGHT

WHAT'S POSSIBLE: INVESTING NOW FOR PROSPEROUS, SUSTAINABLE NEIGHBORHOODS

This keynote panel explores how Vermont can embrace economic growth while advancing climate resilience, affordability, and abundance. Moderated by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and grounded in their publication What's Possible, the conversation will feature voices from Vermont and beyond, highlighting how innovative cross-sector collaboration can drive sustainable development.

Panelists include: Vermont State Treasurer Mike Pieciak, Maggie Super Church (Massachusetts Community Climate Bank), Evan Langfeldt (O'Brien Brothers), Mari McClure (Green Mountain Power)

WHAT TO EXPECT

Strategic Convening: Uniting business, state, and municipal leaders committed to moving Vermont's Economic Action Plan from vision to reality.

Action-Oriented Agenda: Deep dives into workforce growth, housing expansion, and community revitalization—each session designed to deliver frameworks and best practices that can be scaled across Vermont.

Peer Learning: Hear directly from communities and businesses at different stages of Economic Action Plan implementation, sharing real-world lessons, challenges, and successes.

Expert Insights: Keynotes and panels featuring leading economists, policy makers, and private-sector innovators who will unpack the data and narrative driving Vermont's next phase of growth.

Interactive Break-Outs: Facilitated workshops where attendees co-create actionable strategies, leaving with tangible roadmaps to tackle local workforce, housing, and community development needs.

Networking & Collaboration: Curated networking breaks, roundtables, and a closing reception—designed to spark new partnerships and amplify collective impact across sectors.
